ROBINSON GIVES
STERLING DISPLAY

By "Referee"

A BRILLIANT DISPLAY of goal-keeping by Robinson and a "hat trick" by Lee Wai-tong were the highlights of the charity football game at Soekunpoo yesterday in aid of the B.W.O.F. and the "South China Morning Post" Bomber Fund which resulted in the Combined Chinese defeating "Rest of the Colony" by 4 goals to 1 after being led by the only goal scored by Fox in the first half.

Bickford, Howlett and Sheehan were absentees from the Association team. Le Page came into the side in place of Howlett and Fraser, a reserve back, was seen on the left wing. Britt played in Sheehan's place at left half. The Chinese team were at full strength except that Lee Shek-yau was seen on the left wing in place of Hau Ching-to.

Though the Rest led at the interval Chinese had most of the game in that period and only the brilliant goalkeeping of Robinson, who brought off saves from all angles, prevented the Chinese from scoring.

Good Backs

Roughley and Edmunds played as well as could be expected against the fast moving Chinese team who early on struck their usual combination but in spite of this they took some time to settle down.

Freshwater had the best of Lee Shek-yau at most times while Leonard, in the pivotal position, had his attentions fully occupied by the three inside forwards, each of whom made the best use of the ball. That he was able to keep them in check to a certain degree in the first half merits mention.

At left half, Britt had a trying afternoon against Cheung Yung-sum and Fung King-cheong but on the whole did well and reduced the danger from the right-wing considerably.

Fraser was a great trier on the left wing in an unaccustomed position but knew what to do with the ball when in possession.

Good Trio

Owens, on the right wing, did a lot of useful work. He had Lee Ting-sang guessing on several occasions with his ball control but would do better to centre more quickly. Fox worked hard in the centre-forward berth and was well supported by Hendy and LePage.

In the first half these three players were seen in several good movements, but Cheung Wing-chai and the steady play of Lee Ting-sang and Tsang Chung-wan prevented them from scoring more.

Much was expected of Hyui, in the centre forward position. He showed good ball control was accurate and good in his passing but he did not have much chance to shoot. Lee Wai-tong received his share of attentions from the robust Leonard. In the first half he had several shots saved by Robinson but in the second period scored three good goals and would have added another when he missed with an empty goal in front of him.

The ball control artist, Fung King-cheong, started off with his usual game from the beginning. He supplied his team mates with good passes and enabled Cheung Yung-sum to have several clear runs down the field. Lee Shek-yau, on the left-wing, was weak. His centring was not up to standard and his shooting poor.

Tse Kam-hung started very shakily and could not cope with Owens and Le Page but improved in the second half. He, many times, saved his side by coming to the right half berth but left the opponents in his own position unmarked.

Robinson's Exhibition

Rest started attacking. Fraser missed when well placed. At the other end Robinson earned the applause of the crowd by bringing off several good saves in rapid succession and displaying great daring with his saves.

Fox opened the scoring when he lobbed a centre from Owen into the net.

In the second half Chinese took the initiative and before long were leading by 3 goals to 1 thanks to three good goals by Lee Wai-tong. The other goals for Chinese was scored by Fung King-cheong. A USEFUL GOLF EXERCISE

By BEST BALL

GRAPHIC GOLF

Illustrated above is an exercise one can practice all winter if desired. Its primary purpose is to train the muscles to turn the body freely underneath the head, which in turn is kept in the same position throughout. If you have difficulty keeping your head still during the golf stroke or are subject to swaying this is the exercise to follow.

A post or a wall will suffice as the anchoring place for the head, the spine bending gracefully forward to accommodate the movement of the arms. From such a position the player can practice turning his body back and forth, making a complete weight shift in each operation. While the back muscles should be loose any tendency to sway should be avoided. The centre of the back should serve as an axis around which hips and shoulders rotate.
